

The Spiritual Significance Of Music

HAROLD ROSENBAUM

I believe that the ability to reach perfection and become one with God is within each of us. There are many paths on this journey, and it can take many incarnations to reach this state of bliss. Whether it is toiling humbly in the fields, viewing all humans as brothers, sitting cross-legged on your bed meditating, or making others happy through music, we become more spiritual beings, more in tune to the divine within us. It is not so much that music has a spiritual significance, but rather that music has a spiritual essence, that music is a spiritual force which can be an important vehicle for spiritual growth. Music is a universal language. When combined with words which uplift the spirit, music becomes a spiritual force, a healer, a motivator, and a chariot in which one soars to higher places.
